
Michael R. Erk

Director, Logistics Management Integration Naval Air Systems Command

Mr. Erk is currently the Director, Logistics Management Integration for the Naval Air Systems Command. He leads a team of logisticians in acquiring and sustaining cost-wise readiness for Naval Aviation. He actively participates in design reviews and critical program sustainment strategies and decisions, working across NAVAIR competencies, Fleet, other Navy organizations, and OSD.

Mr. Erk was appointed to the Senior Executive Service in August 2005 and has over 26 years of Federal Service.

From September 2003 to August 2005, Mr. Erk served as principal Deputy Program Manager for Cruise Missile Weapons Systems (PMA-282), where he led the development, procurement, and life-cycle support of Tomahawk and Harpoon weapons control systems. The Tactical Tomahawk Weapon System gained Fleet release approval in June 2004.

From May 1999 to September 2003, Mr. Erk co-led NAVAIR's activity-based costing (ABC) and business process reengineering (BPR) efforts, was functional team-lead for NAVAIR's Enterprise Resource Planning (ERP) program, and served as the Naval Aviation Deputy Value Chain Manager for the Navy-level ERP program.

From November 1995 to October 1997, Mr. Erk was Assistant Program Executive Officer for PEO(A) Logistics, where he provided logistics leadership, guidance, and supervision to the fixed-wing aircraft program offices.

From October 1990 to November 1995, Mr. Erk was the P-3 aircraft product support team leader, where he was accountable for acquisition and in-service logistics for the P-3 program office, and helped pioneer the integrated maintenance concept.

From September 1983 to October 1990, Mr. Erk was a support equipment engineer for the H-60 aircraft and various avionics systems.

Mr. Erk received his bachelor's of science degree in mechanical engineering from the Pennsylvania State University in 1983 and his master's in education from Marymount University in 1995. He attended the Defense Systems Management College in 1995, and the Federal Executive Institute in 1999. He received the Superior Civilian Service Award in 2001.